

About the RHA Compass

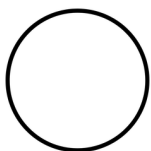

The RHA Compass is the symbol and logo for the Residence Hall Association at Indiana University - Bloomington. Designed by RHA Executive Vice President Nate Soco in tandem with the RHA 2025-26 Executive Board, the compass represents the purpose and mission of RHA itself.

The fifteen notches of the compass represent the fifteen student governments on the IU campus, and the residence halls of which they represent. As the foundation of the compass itself, these in-center governments work tirelessly on the front lines to carry out RHA's mission of bettering the lives of students in the residence halls.

The eight points of the compass represent the eight members of the RHA Executive Board. While each exec board member carries out different responsibilities as a part of their role—represented by each point branching out in a different direction—united they serve as guiding lights toward upholding the RHA mission.

The rose of the compass represents the advisors and student staff of Residence Life. As the core of RHA, they are the mentors from which all student leaders within RHA can seek support.

Together, these elements form the compass of RHA: a lasting promise to the students of Indiana University - Bloomington to help them "find their way."
